

Disclosure of General Business Relationships

Acorn strives for transparency in our services. We see it as an important value and want to provide as full a disclosure as possible. None of the following professional connections are believed to create any inherent conflicts of interest, although if you or your attorney believe there might be a specific issue in your case created by these associations we want you to have that information up front. Please check the CV of the clinician with whom you are working to determine their particular relationships. These are located on their biographical page online.

Contractors

Our clinicians and other team members contract with Acorn to provide them with access to a high quality website, our Social Media Marketing and networking systems, our offices and office equipment, and most use our policies and procedures. Each contractor sets their own hours and while they are all play trained, they may not be specialists in any one group.

We contract with Therapy Appointment, Ring Central, and Google to provide HIPAA compliant services. We follow the guidelines these companies set out so that our clients' privacy is protected.

We are also contractors for Refuge for Women to provide professional development services and specialized counseling services.

Short Term Renters

Rachel Bailey rents office space at Acorn. Her business relationship with Acorn Counseling Education Services is as a renter and our businesses are completely separate.

Organizations

Our clinicians are active in our community. We work with EMDRIA, the Early Childhood Coalition, C7 HTC, Collaborative Divorce Denton County, New Ways For Families, Collaborative Divorce Texas, Texas Play Therapy Association, Association of Play Therapy, Texas Association of Family Forensics, and the Association of Family and Conciliation Courts [AFCC].
